—OF—

CARPET AND MATTING REMNANTS.

AND THIS IS THE WHY! At the end of every season the carpet mills drop out a goodly portion of the previous season's patterns to make way for the new designs that must take up the looms. Every carpet store then finds itself in possession of a quantity of "short ends" or remnants, sometimes the most desirable patterns in its stock, which it is impossible to get more of.

Some concerns hang on to these one-room pieces hoping the customers will come along some day who will need just the amount. Not so here—we hunt for the customers. Got a room to cover? Bring on the measure, get the remnant out of our way and keep the extra $5 or $10 in your own pocket.

Best Body Brussels,

Best Hartford Velvets,

Roosevelt's Farewell Luncheon to the "Tennis Cabinet,"

WASHINGTON, March 1.—President Roosevelt today gave a farewell luncheon at the White House to the members of the famous "Tennis Cabinet" and others who have been closely associated with him during the past seven years. Aside from the distinguished government officials who have served among the President's chief aides during his administration, and also his companions at sports of different kinds, there were present men with whom the President had made friends when he was roughing it in the West years ago, and with whom he had gone on numerous hunting expeditions. The occasion was memorable to those who surrounded the President today, and the latter's farewell words were not entirely free from notes of regret, if not sadness. The President, in a brief speech, laid emphasis on the point that no administration had given its chief more loyal service, and he stated that he believed the country had never had a more devoted set of public servants than those men through whom, he said, most of the work of his administration had been accomplished. The President in his remarks following the luncheon said:

"Gentlemen: You are here nominally as members, or to meet the members, of the Tennis Cabinet—that is, as men with whom at tennis, or hunting, or riding, or walking, or boxing, I have played, with whom I have been on the round-up, or in the mountains, or in the ranch country. But really, as you know, you are not here for that reason at all—you are here because you are the men, and because you represent the men, withw hom I have worked while I have been President. No administration has ever had finer or more loyal service than you have given, and I do not believe this country has ever had an abler or more devoted set of public servants. It is through you, and those like you, that I have done the major part of what has been accomplished under this administration. Moreover, in a vast number of cases the doing of the work itself has been your only reward; the credit has come to me, to the chief of the administration—for exactly as men like to symbolize a battle by the name of the commander, so they like to symbolize an administration by the man at the head, forgetting that the immense majority of his acts can be done only through others, and that a really successful administration—successful from the standpoint of advancing the honor and the interests of the country—must be managed as ours has been, in a spirit of the most loyal association and partnership.

"There are many others, like you, whom I would have given much to bring here today, but there simply wasn't room enough, and so I have brought you here, partly for your own sakes, but primarily as representing thousands of other workers; as representing all good, faithful, fearless public servants, who strive their best to do what the public need demands, and who, in the last analysis, stand all on the same level, when judged by that supreme test which takes into chief account the spirit of the service rendered. Whether a man is a cabinet minister, a bureau chief, a marshal, an Indian agent, a forester, a letter carrier, a member of the life saving service, a clerk in a department or a workman in a navy yard, or whether he holds one of a hundred other positions, makes not the slightest difference if he puts his heart and his soul and his mind into the work, and is content to accept as his chief reward the satisfaction which comes from knowledge that the work has been well done. So, while I greet you for yourselves, I greet you still more as symbolizing others, and in saying farewell to you I shall take as symbolizing all of you one who leaves public life when I leave it—a man who made a real personal sacrifice when seven years ago he came here to take office at my request; a man who has stood ever since as the type of what a good public servant should be; a man who for the last two years has been one of the most useful cabinet ministers who ever sat at the cabinet table—Jim Garfield."

Those present at the luncheon were: The French ambassador, Secretary Bacon, Mr. Justice Moody, the Postmaster General, Secretary Newberry, Secretary Garfield, Secretary Loeb, Solicitor General Hoyt, Assistant Secretary O'Laughlin, Assistant Secretary Winthrop, Assistant Secretary Satterlee, Assistant Attorney General Woodruff, Assistant Secretary Phillips, Comptroller Murray, Commissioner Leupp, Commissioner Neill, Commissioner Smith, Commissioner McHenny, Hon. John C. Rose, Hon. Henry L. Stimson, Hon. Lyman H. Bass, Gifford Pinchot, James B. Reynolds, W. W. Heffelfinger, Captain Luther S. Kelly, "Yellowstone Kelly," whom the President first met in the Little Missouri, at present an Indian agent in Arizona; W. W. Sewall, the President's old guide; Captain Seth Bullock, Commissioner Keefe, Dr. Henry S. Pritchett and John Abernathy.

FAREWELL GREETINGS SAID.

Among Roosevelt's Many Callers Are Two Hundred Newspaper Men.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The executive offices of the White House were crowded throughout the day by well-wishers and admirers of President Roosevelt, seeking to say farewell greetings. The President shook hands with 400 or 500 callers, and expressed deep appreciation of the many kindly words spoken to him.

Almost 200 newspaper men responded to the President's invitation, transmitted through the standing committee of correspondents, to meet him at noon today to say good-bye. No less than 40 of these came from Baltimore. The President talked to them briefly, and for each one individually he had a word of good cheer and a good wish. The newspaper men with whom he has worked for seven years were deeply affected at the leave-taking.

A DISAGREEMENT TO BE REPORTED.

Individual Views Will Not Have Body's Sanction.

Tennessee Coal Merger Action Regarded as Compromise.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Senate committee on judiciary today voted to report a disagreement on the resolution providing for an investigation of the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company by the United States Steel Corporation. Any view submitted to the Senate on the subject will be considered "individual" reports, not having the sanction of the committee. This is generally regarded as a compromise, as a number of Senators had drafted a report declaring the merger to be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and rebuking President Roosevelt for his part in the transaction, while others declared that it was not the function of the committee, under the resolution adopted, to pass on these questions.

The decision not to submit either of the reports of the sub-committee was reached after a great deal of discussion. Finally Senator Fulton moved that a disagreement be reported, and that each Senator should have the individual right reserved to him to make such expressions of views to the Senate as he desired. This motion was adopted by a vote of 7 to 5, the affirmative votes being Messrs. Clark of Wyoming, Depew, Foraker, Dillingham, Knox, Fulton and Clarke of Arkansas, and the negative votes being Nelson, Kittridge, Culberson, Overman and Rayner. Senator Bacon was not present.

No vote was taken by the committee on either of the reports of the subcommittee. Mr. Foraker suggested that the committee should report to the Senate that the President was not authorized by law to permit the merger, such a report being in direct response to the inquiry of the Senate. Whereas a motion of that character excited a great deal of debate and differences of opinion, Mr Foraker gave way to the suggestion of Mr. Fulton. The views of Mr. Bacon were expressed in a letter to the committee, and it is expected that he will amplify these later and present them to the Senate.

WAR AT NARRAGANSETT PIER.

Town Meeting Rescinds Previous Action on Sewerage Question.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, March 1.—An interesting war between the summer residents here and the taxpayers of the town of Narragansett was begun this afternoon over the question of preventing sewage from washing on the bathing beach.

Last Friday the legislature issued $20,000 worth of bonds for the sewerage construction. Saturday a committee representing the summer people sold the bonds and contracted for the work. Today came the town meeting, at which all previous action on the sewerage question was rescinded and an appropriation of $5,000 made for the repair of the present sewerage system.

Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon the next step had not been taken, but it was the general opinion that a perpetual injunction would be asked for by the townsmen to prevent the council from issuing the bonds.

TWO SIDES WAR OVER DR. GLASGOW.

Employed by Prosecution, Subpoenaed by Defense.

Counsel for State Finally Retire for Consultation.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 1.—Refreshed after a day's adjournment, and with their lines of battle reformed, counsel in the Cooper-Sharp trial for the slaying of former Senator E. W. Carmack appeared in court today for a renewal of the contest. With their ordeal of cross-examination behind them, the three defendants were in especially good humor. Even Colonel Cooper, usually stern and taciturn, smiled genially at his friends, and seemed to enjoy a playful push in the back given by his youngest daughter, Miss Beverly Wilson of Mobile.

As soon as Judge Hart rapped for order Judge Anderson of the defense requested that the jury be sent from the room, and it was so ordered by the court.

"Call Dr. Glasgow," said Judge Anderson. "The defendants are informed that a few days after the burial of Senator Carmack an autopsy was performed by Dr. Glasgow. He said, to his credit, however, that he is personally willing, but that he has been instructed by the state not to talk. We ask that he be instructed to answer our questions."

Then Attorney General McCara said: "We have instructed Dr. Glasgow not to talk. We retained Dr. Glasgow to get certain facts for us. These facts the defendants know. They put three bullets into the dead man. shot the bullets into the dead man. They were there, and we were not. We have no living witness to that killing. The defense simply wants to know how much we know, and we object to their trying to get at our evidence. If they want to put Dr. Glasgow on the stand under oath, then all right. We are willing, but they have no right to try to find out just how much of the truth we know. Some papers said that we had decided not to put Dr. Glasgow on the stand. This is untrue."

General Washington replied for the defense that when the state closed its case without using Dr. Glasgow the defense subpoenaed the doctor, and that he was the defense's witness.

It will be recalled that no autopsy was held on Senator Carmack's body after the tragedy. Two physicians cut out the two bullets which passed through his abdomen. All these bullets were directly under the skin. There was no effort to discover the range of the bullets. Early in January, however the state's attorneys, accompanied by Dr. Glasgow and another physician, went to Columbia and disinterred the body of the dead senator. The results of the autopsy were not made public.

"I instructed the doctor," said Judge Hart, "that it is not improper not to talk, but it is proper to talk if he wishes."

"I am employed by another, and without his consent I cannot talk. It would not be professional," said Dr. Glasgow.

The court observed that the question raised was a novel one. Finally the attorney general said: "If the defense will pay us back what we paid for Dr. Glasgow's services, we consent to their conferring with him."

"If we decide to use the doctor as a witness we will reimburse the state," said Judge Anderson.

"No, you won't; you will reimburse us before you talk to him," said the attorney general.

"Now that you have gotten the dispute down to a question of dollars and cents," interposed the court in a disgusted tone, "the defense's contention is that it wants to see the goods before it buys them. The state, however, wants to sell them in a bag."

Counsel for the state finally retired for consultation with Dr. Glasgow.

KILLS NINE TENTHS OF NOISE.

Coulombe Gun Casing Eliminates Recoil and Makes Powder Smokeless.

NORTHFIELD, Vt., March 1.—A type of barrel which is claimed to kill nine tenths of the noise of a gun, to eliminate the recoil and to make black powder practically smokeless, has been publicly demonstrated before members of the Northfield Gun Club during the past week. The inventor, Joseph C. Coulombe, was graduated from Norwich University in 1905, and since then has spent most of his time in perfecting this device. He explains that it differs from the Maxim invention in that the latter is an attachment to be placed on the end of the gun barrel, while his device is a part of the gun, consisting of a thin steel casing extending the full length of the barrel. In the demonstrations here a 6-millimeter United States navy rifle, which could be heard by men stationed three miles distant, had its noise so deadened by the Coulombe invention that it could be heard only 25 yards away.

Mr. Coulombe has recently returned from Venezuela, where he went last fall to exhibit his invention to President Castro. While there he made demonstrations before the ministers from France, Germany, Spain and Portugal, in one of which, owing to a defective gun barrel or cartridge, he had his left thumb blown off.

ARMING GERMAN AIRSHIPS.

For Rigid, Cannon or Machine Guns; Semi-Rigid, Lighter Weapons.

BERLIN, March 1.—The military airship of the future is to be armed with small cannon or machine guns. The army authorities at several headquarters throughout Germany are experimenting along this line, and it has been virtually decided to provide balloons of the rigid Zeppelin type with either cannon or machine guns. The danger resulting from the recoil and the escape of gas from the muzzle has been practically eliminated by a system of adjustments, the details of which are kept secret. It is proposed, also, to arm the semi-rigid balloons of the Parseval and Gross types with a lighter, rapid-fire weapon, thus enabling them to attack infantry detachments.

ON SUPREME COURT BIBLE.

Taft Announces That He Will Take the Oath of Office.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—President-elect Taft announced tonight that when he takes the oath of office next Thursday as President Roosevelt's successor his hands will rest upon the Bible which has been kept in sacred custody by the Supreme Court of the United States for more than 100 years. The next chief magistrate indicated that there was a touch of sentiment in his decision, and remarked that this is the book which would have been used in administering the oath to him if he had become a member of the highest legal tribunal in the country.

It has been the custom of past Presidents to use a new or an historic Bible in taking their oath of office, and each has retained the book thereafter. Mr. Taft will make no claim on the Bible of his choice and it will go back to the archives of the court, for which there are many evidences of a reverent respect and a lingering fondness by Mr. Roosevelt's successor.

Another innovation is likely to break a precedent in inauguration details, and when Mr. Taft returns to the White House after the inaugural ceremonies Mrs. Taft will probably be seated by his side in the Presidential carriage. President Roosevelt has announced an intention to go direct from the ceremonies to the station to take his train for Oyster Bay. If he does not change his mind there will be a vacant seat which it is proposed to have Mrs. Taft occupy.

In accordance with the custom of the retiring President, Mr. Roosevelt issued a proclamation today calling the Senate in extraordinary session at noon on March 4. The session is to be held for the purpose of receiving "such communications as may be made by the Executive," among them, probably, the nomination of Cabinet officers.

THE RUSSELL—KELLEY MARRIAGE.

NAVAL WAR IN CONGRESS.

A Reminder of the Sampson-Schley Controversy.

Military Road in Alaska Urged—Forraker's Committees—School for Sailors—Use of Automobiles.

[Washington Correspondence of the News.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Senator Rayner was all primed for a speech in which he expected to pay further glowing tributes to Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, in the naval appropriation bill was an innocent looking paragraph, but there was a motive behind it. The item provided that the President might select and nominate some one on the retired list to be vice admiral, making his rank next to Dewey, the admiral of the navy. Of course it was well understood here that had this carefully prepared plan gone through Congress "Fighting Bob" Evans would have received the honor. He has been most anxious for it, according to common talk in Washington, and the head of the nation is believed to favor him. Senator Rayner was chief counsel for Admiral Schley during the famous court of inquiry which went against the commander of the Brooklyn in the Santiago bay naval engagement in 1898 and was ready to tell the Senate and the country that if there was to be a vice admiral his hero was the proper one. But Senator Hale promptly admitted that this was new legislation, and on a point of order it had to go out. Rayner lost his opportunity, but he spoiled the game of the admirers of "Fighting Bob." This controversy will probably not end until all the older men in the navy are many years in their graves. Dewey was the only one of the three admirals who acted as judges in the court of inquiry who stood by Schley. The latter for some cause has had the backing of few of the officers of the navy.

The Oregon legislature has sent a memorial to Congress urging that an appropriation of $1,000,000 be voted this session to construct a military road up in Alaska from Valdez to Nome. It is asserted that this road is needed for the security of the people who have gone into that far northern country; that it will insure a good mail service and induce thousands of energetic people to locate in the territory. There is a pretty strong influence being exerted here in behalf of the project, but so far not a great many Senators and Representatives are heeding the call that has been so suddenly made upon them.

Mr. Foraker of Ohio at the close of his last term is on six of the most important Senate committees. Differing from many of the more prominent Senators, he is in this Congress assigned to none of the minor committees, his committee places being Pacific Islands and Porto Rico (chairman), foreign relations, interstate commerce, judiciary, military affairs and privileges and elections. Representative Burton, who will succeed him March 4, can hardly under Senate customs hope to land even at the bottom of a single one of these committees, for the places will be claimed by Republican senators who have entered that body within the past four years. Mr. Burton stands high up in this respect in the House and is recognized as one of the foremost men in the lower branch. Senator Foraker will have served only 12 years when he leaves, and his record for committee advancement has seldom been equaled in such a short period. Senator Cummins of Iowa has been given only the minor committee positions held by the late Senator Allison, all of the latter's big places having gone to Republicans of long service. If Theodore Roosevelt and William J. Bryan were to come to the Senate two years hence from their respective states, they would fare no better in the matter of committee places at the start than Senator Cummins.

Representative Fulton of Oklahoma has introduced a bill to establish an enlisted men's naval academy. The object of the proposed academy. The train and educate the enlisted men of the navy in the duties of their calling, to increase their efficiency, to fit them for promotion and to give them a general education at government expense. The course of study would be similar to that of the Naval Academy, but so graded as to meet the qualifications of those entering. If the bill passes, the academy is to be located somewhere on the seacoast, and the sum of $500,000 is asked to carry out the project.

Senator Warren, when pushed in an argument during the discussion on buying automobiles for use of government officials—Senator Bailey having condemned the machines because they frighten country horses and are befitting, degrading and driving out the noble animal—wiggled out by saying that on his own big ranch in Wyoming automobiles are used as a necessity for rounding up horses. In no other way, he declared, could it be done at times.

SOLDIERS WARNED.

Major General Wood Issues Order Telling Deadly Effects of Wood or Denatured Alcohol.

Major General Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, has issued a general order to the officers of the department, commanding them to impress upon the enlisted men the deadly effects that follow the drinking of wood or denatured alcohol. The order is now in the hands of the post and company commanders in New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia.

It is said on Governor's Island that headquarters had received reports concerning the drinking of wood alcohol at one of the artillery posts in the department. Death followed. It appeared that the men had no knowledge of the poisonous ingredients of wood alcohol. The incident was brought to the attention of General Wood, with the result of the prompt issuance of the order.

RHODE ISLAND'S DELEGATION.

Nearly 30 Military Members of State Party Will Participate in Big Event at Washington.

When the Colonial Express pulls out of the Union Station, Providence, at 10:07 Tuesday morning for New York there will be attached to it a special parlor car, in which will be the members of the party to represent this state at the inaugural ceremonies in Washington Thursday. About 30 are in the official delegation, though other Rhode Islanders will participate in the big event at the capital. These, as a rule, will be aides on the staffs of the marshals of some of the divisions, though in one instance at least a Rhode Islander and his family will be the guests of the governor of another state.

According to all indications, the military members of the state party will make a brave showing. If any other state sends brigadier generals, colonels and lieutenant colonels who can wear gold braid with more gaiety than those representing Little Rhody, the 14 members of the governor's general staff would like to know about it. They expect to wear their dress uniforms without side arms, while en route to and from Washington, but will blossom out in the panoply of full dress uniform and everything that goes with it on the day of the inauguration.

The members of the official party will be: Governor Aram J. Pothier, Brigadier General Frederic M. Sackett, Adjutant General; Brigadier General W. Howard Walker, quartermaster-general; Brigadier General George H. Kenyon, surgeon general; Brigadier General Walter R. Stiness, judge advocate general; Colonel John H. Wethrell, assistant adjutant general; Lieutenant Colonel Webster Knight, assistant quartermaster general; Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Peckham, assistant surgeon general; Lieutenant Colonel Nathaniel W. Smith, assistant judge advocate general; Colonel Latimer W. Ballou, Colonel Edmond H. Guerin, Colonel Ambrose Kennedy, Colonel Emery J. San Souci, Colonel Fred B. Lawton, Colonel Edward A. Sherman, members of the Governor's personal staff; Major Charles W. Abbot, U. S. A., retired; Brigadier General Herbert S. Tanner, Lieutenant Colonel Arthur V. Warfield, Assistant Adjutant General, representing the Rhode Island National Guard; Commander William C. Bliss of the Naval Militia; Secretary of State Charles P. Bennett, General Treasurer Walter A. Read, Attorney General William B. Greenough, Speaker Roswell B. Burchard of the House of Representatives, Executive Secretary Edward Parsons Tobie, Mrs. Aram J. Pothier, Mrs. Latimer W. Ballou, Mrs. Edward Parsons Tobie, Lealie W. Merrill, Providence Journal; Horace G. Belcher, Providence Tribune; ex-Governor D. Russell Brown, News-Democrat.

Although General Charles R. Brayton was invited by Governor Pothier to be a member of the Rhode Island party, General Brayton, as Republican national committeeman from this state, had accepted an invitation to be a member of the reception committee, and so will probably travel independently. Others who will go from this state, though not of the official party, are Harry P. Cross, who will be one of the aides; Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Tillinghast, who will be a mounted aide in the military division; Colonel George H. Webb, who will be a mounted aide on the staff of the marshal of the civic division, and Judge Nathan M. Wright, secretary of the Republican state central committee.

The Rhode Islanders expect to arrive in Washington shortly before 10 o'clock Tuesday evening. The state's headquarters will be at the Arlington. Wednesday will be spent in sight-seeing and Thursday will be the big day. The state's representatives will have places on the reviewing stand and some of them expect to attend the inaugural ball in the evening.

An endeavor is being made to have a brief reception of the members by President Taft Friday, but it is not certain that it will be possible to arrange this. The party will leave Washington at 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning and is due to reach Providence about 7:30 that evening.

NEW BILLS AT 80TH.

Opera House and Star Theatre to Continue Moving Pictures and Vaudeville.

Vaudeville and moving pictures will continue during the week at the Opera House, with changes of bill today and Thursday. The vaudeville for the first half of the week includes May Maxfield, a character singing comedienne; the Three Finney Brothers in a novelty horizontal bar act, and the Romaine Brothers in comedy songs. The moving pictures are "The Poor Musician," "Joel's Wedding," "Perpetual Proposals," and "The Tell-Tale Blotter."

The rehearsal of the pictures for the Star Theatre has shown a bill of unusually fine photography, the two leading films being "The Brazilian's Ring," showing the natives of that country in their natural surroundings with plenty of life, and "The Hand," where the scene is laid in an actress's dressing room. Both films are of the tinted type, which takes off the glare common in the plain black and white. Miss Sharron, who has been making a hit at the house, will sing the latest success in the musical world, "I have got to Make Love to Somebody."

The attractions in Providence this week will be the new Clyde Fitch comedy, "The Happy Marriage," three nights, and George M. Cohan's musical play, "The American Idea," during the remainder of the week, at the Providence Opera House; "Wine, Women and Song" at the Empire, vaudeville at Keith's and burlesque at the Imperial and Westminster.

The Boston theatres announce the following bills: Hollis Street, Ethel Barrymore in "Lady Frederick;" Colonial, Fritzi Scheff in "The Prima Donna;" Boston, "Way Down East;" Keith's, Jefferson De Angelis in "The Rehearsal;" Castle Square, "Old Heidelberg;" Park, Hattie Williams in "Fluffy Ruffles;" Tremont, "A Waltz Dream;" Majestic, "The Witching Hour."

The new announcements in New York are Kathryn Kidder in "A Woman of Impulse" at the Herald Square, Marie Doro in "The Richest Girl" at the Criterion and a new play by Thomas Addison, "Meyer & Son," at the Garden. The program of grand opera at the Metropolitan Opera House will be as follows: Monday, "Faust;" Wednesday, "Vilii" and "Cavalleria Rusticana;" Thursday, "Manon;" Friday, "Madame Butterfly;" Saturday, "The Bartered Bride" and "Parsifal." The program at the Manhattan Opera House will be: Monday, "Il Trovatore;" Wednesday, "I Puritani;" Friday, "Otello;" Saturday, "Louise" and "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame."

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded, 50c.

FREDERIC FRANCOIS CHOPIN.

The Centenary of Poland's Great Musical Genius.

A Pianist Who Gave His Life, Love and Whole Soul to the Instrument.

[Oliver Leigh. Copyright 1909 by the American Press Association.]

To sit in a cosy room in the gloaming, the flickering fire the only light, and hear a gentle handed player draw from a common pianoforte the mystic dream music of a Nocturne—this is to realize the unsuspected celestial harmonies that lie hid in the too familiar box in which hammers and wires are incited to wrangle and jangle. Chopin gave his life, his love, his whole soul to this, the instrument into whose nature he penetrated deeper than its throng of devotees. They could make it sing and dance, crash and roar or tinkle as sweetly as a pebbly brook, but he bewitched it into showering as from April skies the glittering rainbow music of the spheres.

Chopin was born in Zelazowa-Wola, near Warsaw, March 1, 1809. During the life of his parents the land which Sobieski made glorious had been devastated by merciless wars and divided between Russia, Prussia and Germany. His father was a French Polander. His mother was of native blood, and the infant drank deeply of the patriotism that still wells in every Polish bosom. The tumult of hopeless insurrections may be said to have been the accompaniment of his cradle songs. No wonder he was a melancholy man. Polish music is melancholy. Even in its wildest dances there must come a lament for the sacred cause—for the time a lost cause.

Lucky for posterity it was that so frail a constitution had not to battle for existence. It would have smothered the Chopin genius, though pianos would not have gone mute. His father had a profitable boarding school, in which the boy and his three sisters enjoyed happy years and were well schooled. A locally famous violinist taught him the piano and perhaps inspired him to make it sing like the stringed instrument. At eight he played at his first concert for a charity. When his mother asked how he felt on facing an audience he grumpily replied, "Oh, they were all looking at my new lace collar!" in which one of his biographers shrewdly sees the germ of Chopin's lifelong contempt for popular audiences.

The famous Elsner, director of the Warsaw conservatoire, was pleased to teach him the theory of music, harmony and counterpoint. During these years Chopin wisely rambled through the country, picking up folk songs and rustic dances, all throbbing with the Slavonic spirit. He was also taken up by ladies of the nobility, who made a drawing-room pet of him. His long list of improvisations, with dances and light pieces, brought fame and patronage. Chopin's was a feminine temperament. He preferred this luxurious life to the ungrateful task of performing to the multitude for money wage. The czar gave him a diamond ring in 1825. Four years later he removed to Vienna and joined the ranks of popular pianists, Prince Radziwill, himself an amateur musician of exceptional gifts, bore the charges of a first rate general education for Chopin.

On the publication of his "Variations For the Piano, With Orchestra Accompaniments," and his fantasia on "Don Giovanni" he was acclaimed as an artist of mature powers, Schumann said, "Hats off, gentlemen: here's a genius!" He started for London; but, calling at Paris on his way, he halted there—for life. He was one of the many refugees who left Poland after its final subjugation in 1830. He would go a-soldiering but was better advised, so sat down and put all his patriotic despair and indignation into the great "Study in C Minor," the first sound of which is like the crack of doom. This musical language of romance captivated the cultured audiences. It tells more powerfully than all the bullets he might have missed fire with—and been accounted a hero.

Chopin worked hard in composition and at the piano. He gave no public concerts for the four years ending with 1835. He only resorted to this when badly in need of money. Most of his concerts were semi-private during the last 10 years of his life. Liszt pictures a famous recital in the home of Pleyel, with a brilliant company of musicians and others.

Those were romantic days when Europe was seething with wars and rumors of wars, when knights and dames, poets, artists and writers had to fly with their lady loves from the horrors of invasion. The tender and delicate figure of the distracted young Chopin, seeking a snug haven for his precious genius, could not but burn the hearts of susceptible but not free girls, who longed to play heroine to him as hero, but were tethered by their mothers' apron strings. Mendelssohn once labeled him "Chopinette," so we may believe that not many broken hearts marked his flight from Poland.

His first love worthy the name was Constantia Gladowska, a student in the Warsaw conservatoire. Whether they met often or at all is not quite known. He was supposed to have been in love with another, living elsewhere, when Constantia came in his path. She sent him a ring, however. When the revolution broke out and he fled with the rest the pupils of the conservatoire waylaid his coach, started a concert on the spot and with a pretty touch of sentiment presented him with a silver cup filled with the earth of their beloved Poland. This earth was strewn over Chopin's grave when he was interred in Pere Lachaise cemetery.

Maria, sister of Count Wodzinski, also of the Polish colony in Paris, won Chopin's delicate heart. This promised well, but the lady's father objected, and it was dropped. Not so by the count, her brother, who made a book about "The Three Romances of Frederic Chopin." There is no accounting for even a titled brother's taste, whether his object was revenge or cash.

That extraordinary woman and powerful writer, George Sand, came into Chopin's life when he was nearing 30, she being five years his senior. A strong minded and far from beautiful girl of 18, educated in a convent, she became the wife of Baron Dudevant, a military man much older than herself and of opposite tastes. After nine unhappy years she formed a partnership with Jules Sandeau, and their novel made its mark. Then she wrote "Indiana," the first of her 80 stories, adopting the first half of his surname as her pseudonym. In this book she ventilated extreme opinions on social questions and dared public criticism by carrying them into practice.

Around her brilliant lamp clustered young men of intellectual distinction, dazzled by her philosophy more than by any charms and willingly dominated by her masterful personality. Alfred de Musset and Chopin were among the devoteees. Chopin's feminine nature needed a virile intellect to lean upon. George Sand, like George

MARCH.

[Lippincott's]

Four singers bless this weary world,
And with their voices all bewitch.
Earth thrills when joyous Summer sings
Contralto rich.

Another then takes up the strain
And, blending with the carol glad,
Full sings a mournful melody—
A tenor sad.

Then Winter lifts his mighty voice
And, filling every lonely place,
Throughout the wood and vale resounds
His booming bass.

Before his echo dies away
Another joins with bliss replete,
And rapturous breaks forth young Spring
Soprano sweet.

In March we hear strange notes of each,
While in the air harsh discords ring;
And we can but surmise the choir
Is quarrelling.

COMMODORE JAMES'S PLANS.

New York Yacht Club's Schedule of Races Completed.

Newport Will Have More Than Its Accustomed Share of Racing the Coming Summer.

Newport will have more than its accustomed share of yacht racing the coming summer if the plans of Commodore Arthur Curtiss James of the New York Yacht Club and the regatta committee are approved by the members. In these plans Newport takes the place of Long Island sound for the early summer races and the annual cruise will keep the fleet here three days, including the Astor cup and King's cup races and a sail over Sunday.

Commodore James intends sending the squadron to Bar Harbor in August. It is reported and the regatta committee, with the approval of the ning officers, has practically abandoned Long Island Sound and its short cruises. In great contrast all the regular races of the year will be sailed over fairly long courses and will be in the open except the first, which is scheduled for Thursday, June 17. That will be over the familiar 30-mile courses of Station No. 10, at Glen Cove, and will be for the Spring cups. This is the small boats' principal chance to win club prizes. The four races following the Spring cups have been designated the New York Yacht Club series.

The first of the series will be sailed Wednesday, July 7, and will be in cruising trim from Glen Cove to Newport. That is a stretch never taken before by a club sail, but every one a cruise save once. It is about 115 nautical miles. Two days later, Friday, July 9, there will be races off this port for prizes offered by the Newport Yacht Racing Association. The club courses used for the Astor cups or those of the King's Cup will be sailed over. Again the next day, Saturday, July 10, the annual regatta is called for. The start will be from Brenton's Reef lightship, and the course will be to and around Block Island and return. Monday, July 12, the return race to Glen Cove here will be sailed, the conditions being as for the easterly race over the same course. That winds up the club's regular races.

It has been a little secret for some time that Commodore James has determined to extend the annual cruise to the eastward as far as Bar Harbor. Twelve years ago the squadron was taken there by Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan, and since then Marblehead is as far as the yachts have gone in squadron.

It has been further rumored by the leading yachtsmen, who have been commenting upon and endorsing the Bar Harbor proposition, that the schedule of runs from the rendezvous, as talked over, is excellent. It has been said that the rendezvous of the squadron will be at New London Thursday, August 5; Friday, August 6, the squadron run to Newport will take place; Saturday, August 7, the Astor Cups will be raced for off Newport. Sunday, August 8, the squadron will be at anchor in Newport harbor, and

SUBSCRIBERS WHO DO NOT RECEIVE THEIR PAPERS REGULARLY AND IN GOOD CONDITION SHOULD MAKE COMPLAINT AT THE OFFICE.

THE UNEMPLOYED "AUCTION."

There is no special good to be derived from parading poverty before the world, any more than there is in parading vice in public, and therefore the recent "auction" of unemployed men in New York served no good purpose. It was unique and attracted thousands to witness the spectacle, but was hardly needed in order to impress the people of that large city with the fact that there are many unemployed there. Everybody who is at all interested in such matters knew before that the idle were numerous in the city, and it did not help matters much to exhibit some of these men who are out of work to the gaze of the public, many of whom attended the "auction" not from any real feeling of sympathy for the unfortunates but simply to pass an hour and gratify a curiosity always on the watch for some new way of satisfying itself. That the spectacle had any good and permanent effect is not to be believed.

It would not have been so easily accomplished, but it would have been a great deal more effective as an object lesson, to have taken those whom it was desired to impress with the condition of the idle to the homes in the haunts of misery, suffering and vice and let them see just how these people live. That would have been a course which might have stirred the sympathy of the visitors and led them to some practical charity or to some method of helping those who need and deserve it. The array of men at the "auction" could make an impression only as a number who had no work and some of whom perhaps really desired employment, but the sight of the miserable and squalid homes of the unemployed, would have shown the conditions which idleness, whether forced or preferred, inflicts upon men and their families, and the great need of assistance for these persons would have been enforced in a manner which could not have failed to impress those who saw them with the real want of the idle and their need of help.

Besides, this "auction" savored too much of the sensational, and it is never well to make charitable work of that character. The essence of charity is simplicity and an absence of parade in its beneficence. There can be no such spectacular feature as an "auction" in the expression of genuine charity. The real spirit will show itself quietly, almost secretly, and the good work it will do will be accomplished without display and public advertising. Such schemes as this smack too much of the cheap bid for notoriety and do no real good to either the recipients of the assistance or those who undertake the work. There can be little genuine feeling of satisfaction after such an exhibition, in the dead zone or the possibly small amount of benefit conferred.

From the standpoint of both the giver and the recipient of such charity, therefore, it is to be regretted that such a plan was ever conceived and carried out. There is, however, the one redeeming feature that it is not likely to commend itself to other workers for the relief of the conditions among the poor and unemployed. It will probably stand forth as a single act of its kind, a sort of warning against spectacular, sensational methods of trying to help those who need assistance. Instead of continuing in the old way of doing what can be done with the least possible parade and publicity, it is necessary of course at times to take the public into the confidence of charitable workers in order to secure the funds and the assistance needed in carrying on the work. But it is not necessary often to reveal the depths of the misery into which humanity falls in all its ugly details and parade such a spectacle before the world through the medium of advertised exhibitions in which the unfortunates figure as the chief actors. That is outside the realm of real charity and might never to be attempted anywhere.

A SMOKELESS WARSHIP.

There will soon be a smokeless warships. Ant boats are as common in our harbors as automobiles on our roads, but the gas or internal-combustion engine has not been tried on a large scale. The scale on which this variety of engine has been built has been increasing fast. The advantages of high-pressure water works, not to take the place of the ordinary water supply but to supplement it in emergencies such as fires, was recognized long ago. But it was wasteful to keep steam in the boilers all the time and without it the service was of little use, because a fire would become a conflagration while steam was being made for the high-pressure engines. A few years ago Philadelphia solved the problem by installing several large gas engines. They can be started instantly and in a few minutes be throwing water far higher than a steam fire engine could. New York has followed the example of Philadelphia.

At sea they have been tried a little, but not yet on large vessels. The British naval authorities are to install gas engines on nothing smaller than a battleship. The keel of battleship Indefatigable was laid a few days ago and her striking peculiarity will be that she will have no funnels. She will make no smoke. She will have internal-combustion engines, the kind that an automobile, or what is called a power boat, has. The funnel is a weak spot, because its destruction impairs the draft of the fires and the efficiency of the engines. It offers considerable resistance to the wind, and the smoke is of course objectionable because it betrays the presence of the ship to the enemy and often interferes with the aiming of the guns. With smokeless powder and smokeless engines and soundless rifles the next war will be a very different thing from the wars which we have been accustomed to read about. But human beings will be killed and mutilated whatever weapons, explosives and motor power may be used. War is not growing humane.

NEW YORK CITY FARMS.

In the rapidly increasing population of the world the country of necessity gives way to the city. Yet it has a persistent habit of re-appearing in its usurped domain, as a park, a garden in some backyard, or a box of geraniums on the high window ledge of a tenement-house. Love of the country is inbred in most of us and we all at times long for a sight of "the green things growing." It is said that if traffic were withdrawn from the streets of New York and the city emptied of its inhabitants weeds would soon appear on the asphalt and shrubbery sprout on the roofs of the skyscrapers, and a few years would suffice to give the metropolis the green aspect which stands for nature's re-assertion of her ancient prerogative.

Strange as it may seem, New York has quite a few real farms within her limits, which do something more than supply a point of rest in the wilderness of brick and stone, and these farm areas of the city surrender but slowly to the encroachments of population. They are all truck farms and though contracted in area are very profitable to their owners, bringing large returns in their yield of onions, lettuce, beans, chicory, parsnips and sweet corn, which are readily sold in the markets. These farms are so small and the owners so anxious for large returns that intensive cultivation, hydrant irrigation and the liberal use of fertilizers furnish the secret of their large productiveness. The apartment houses which bedge in these Sabine farms, as they are called, do them a substantial service. They keep off the ruder winds and moderate the frost, thus giving them some of the advantages of a sunken garden.

There is an element in New York which parts with regret with each of these little farms as they gradually give way to the encroachments of the city. They are a reminder of the village past and it seems so much better to have that reminder in the form of little farms and homely cottages than in a mere name or on a bronze table affixed to the wall of a modern building. May it be possible for the city to keep a few of her farms for many years yet, not only as reminders of the past but as rest places in the hurry and bustle of the city's strenuous life.

The Sixtieth Congress will exceed the two-billion-dollar mark in appropriations. At its long session the sums provided for amounted to $1,008,-660,666, and it is believed that the present short session will show an even figure. As yet only one of the general appropriation bills has been sent to the President; the others are in conference, some awaiting agreement by the two houses, and others just agreed upon, but not finally passed, so accurate figures are not yet to be obtained. Enough is known, however, to warrant the statement that the total will reach another billion dollars. It is only a very few years ago when appropriations approximating one billion dollars startled the country.

Twelve new Senators and 50 new Congressmen will begin their duties Thursday. The best known Senators who will retire are Thomas Platt of New York and Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio. Others are Hemenway of Iowa, Ankeny of Washington, Fulton of Oregon, Gary of South Carolina, Hansbrough of Nebraska, Kittredge of South Dakota, Long of Kansas and Milton of Florida, nearly all of whom are serving their first term in the upper house. The best known of the new members are Elihu Root, who succeeds Platt, and Theodore E. Burton, who succeeds Foraker.

The Aldrich compromise bill for a settlement of the Brownsville trouble, having been agreed to by the House, awaits only President Roosevelt's signature to become a law. The bill allows individual members of the Twenty-Fifth infantry to submit proofs of their innocence to the matter of the "shooting up" of Brownsville, Texas, and permits their reinstatement as officers.

The report of the Committee of Twenty Five is or will be soon in the hands of the members of the Representative Council, and there will be a week in which to consider its provisions. There is material in the report for much study and thought.

The Providence school board asks for an appropriation of nearly a million dollars for running the department during the year ending September 30, 1910. The amount is $28,451 more than was asked for the present year.

Washington is rapidly filling up with those who wish to see President Taft inaugurated, at least to say that they were in Washington and did their best to see the ceremony.

President Roosevelt's term is practically ended. There is yet time, however, for a message or two.

There was little of the Ben in Mavis's in-coming.

This will be a big week in Washington.

WATERPROOFING FABRICS.

Fabrics are waterproofed by impregnating them with metallic salts, by coating them with oil, grease and wax, by coating them with india rubber or by treating them with ammoniacal solutions of copper. The first process is applied to sail cloth. The canvas is impregnated with alum or calcium acetate, and then immersed in a fixing bath containing soap, which forms insoluble lime or alumina soap in the cloth.

The second process is used for raincoats, imitation leather, etc. The fabric passes between hot rollers and then over a cylinder of wax, etc.

In the third process a solution of india rubber in carbon disulphide, chloroform or other solvent is applied. The process is used for mackintoshes and bathing caps and is also applied to cloth.

In the fourth process, employed in the manufacture of book bindings and Willesden canvas, cotton cloth is run through a solution of oxids of copper in ammonia, which dissolves the superficial layer and, on evaporation, leaves it in the form of a uniform coating of cellulose. The process is completed by passing the cloth between rollers. There are still other processes, but these are the most important.

HOW WASHINGTON REGARDS MR. ROOSEVELT.

[Irving C. Norwood, in Outing.]

In Washington, where Mr. Roosevelt has been at home, officially, a greater part of the time for many years, he is at once the best understood and the worst misunderstood of men. He is praised and damned, lauded and cursed almost at the same minute and in the same breath. His friends find in him things to detest; his enemies discover qualities they must admire. But all agree on one thing—he is in a class by himself.

The man who denies that Theodore Roosevelt is the original big noise and dominant note, must be deaf. Even so, the vibration of his eardrum should be convincing proof. But he is more. He is the national powder magazine, the political view halloo, the press agent of reform, the inspiration of the uplift and the last word in the last chapter of the book. But it is as a big noise, a dominant note, that Mr. Roosevelt is unique. Just a month or two ago, a husky citizen was arrested in the country outside of Pittsburg. He was demented to the last degree and he mussed up the pastoral vicinity with a flock of policemen before they managed to straight-jacket him and spirit him away in the nearest retreat for the iridescent. His trouble was diagnosed by a distinguished and interested gathering of brain carpenters, as "cranomania." He had been a watchman in an iron foundry with blast furnace and rolling mill attachments, for seven or eight years, eating in the place when on duty and sleeping there when off. Then, in a thoughtless moment he had decided to pay a visit to Aunt Jane, who lived among the lilies. About two miles out of town he suddenly missed the horrible racket that was his accustomed mental and physical stimulant, and went crazy between breaths. This incident, as insignificant and unrelated as it may seem, both points the moral and adorns the tale. It is as significant of abnormal conditions as a snowstorm in July. It is as much of a warning of trouble ahead as the spots on the breastbone of a goose. It should prove of unlimited interest to those of the faithful who have been drilling in the racket from Roosevelt for the last seven years or so, and who are liable to fly into tinders when it stops.

THE OHIO WINS STEAMING TROPHY.

Battleship Ohio sailed Sunday from Hampton Roads for New York. All the vessels of the third squadron of the gray fighting host that met the returning battleships 1,000 miles at sea will sail today for Guantanamo, whence they expect to be sent on a West Indian cruise.

The Ohio sailed away the proud winner of the "steaming trophy" for the voyage around the world.

The announcement of the award was made from flagship Connecticut, and was a fine tribute to the engine room staff of the winning ship. The rules for the contest, which was one of economy in coal and water consumption for the entire trip, were laid down soon after the ships left Hampton Roads 14 months ago.

Contractor and Employe Arrested In Pawtucket Stone Case.

Large Number of "Literary Societies" Incorporated Since the Club License Decision.

James Beach, a stone contractor of Central Falls, and Peter Casey, an employe of the city of Pawtucket at stone crusher No. 1, were arrested late Saturday afternoon on charges of defrauding the city of Pawtucket by obtaining money under false pretenses. They were arraigned at a special session of the Tenth District court before Judge Tuck and admitted to bail during the evening. The arrests were the outcome of the alleged stone crusher graft charges. Both men pleaded not guilty and were ordered to find surety in the sum of $2,000 each for their appearance at a hearing to be held March 8. Peter Lennon, a Pawtucket grain dealer, became bondsman for Beach, and Patrick F. Casey was accepted as surety for Peter Casey. When told of the arrests ex-Governor James H. Higgins said: "The arrest of Beach is entirely logical. I will regard the arrest of some of the city officials, however, as much more logical. If Beach will tell all he knows about the transaction, there will be some interesting developments in Pawtucket. The arrest of Casey I consider a miscarriage of justice, because he did no intentional wrong. The very essence of wrong doing is the intent to do wrong. He received no financial or other advantage from the transaction." Ex-Mayor John J. Fitzgerald of Pawtucket said, when informed that the arrests had been made: "It is a matter of common knowledge that the plan is to make poor old Peter Casey, a man, who was never known to go a wrong to any one, and who is nothing but a plain working man, the scapegoat for all this deep dealing."

During the past month an unusually large number of "literary societies" took out articles of incorporation at the office of the secretary of state. In fact, since the eighth of last month, the day the supreme court handed down a decision to the effect that club licenses were not included in the restrictions regarding the issuing of liquor licenses, there has been a very insistent demand. Hardly a day has gone by without the incorporation of some organization formed for the "social, literary and physical welfare" of its members, and some days there have been two or three. While the opinion has been expressed at the State House that it may be simply a coincidence that the demand for these clubs has grown stronger since the opinion referred to was handed down, nevertheless the frequency with which these incorporation papers are being taken out has occasioned some comment. Since the first of January there have been granted 17 of these so-called "literary incorporations"—that is, counting the clubs whose real objects might appear to be in some doubt and not including lodges, churches, singing societies and other organizations whose purposes are well known. Of these 17 incorporations, 14 have been since February 1, and the large majority since the date when the supreme court handed down its opinion regarding club licenses.

Mrs. Lena Chestner, who keeps a small store at 122 Plain street, Providence, was the thirtieth storekeeper to fall into the hands of the police of that city last week for selling cigarettes to minors contrary to law. She was arraigned in the Sixth District court Saturday morning, and fined $20 and costs by Judge Lee. The campaign against storekeepers who sell cigarettes to minors contrary to law was begun two weeks ago, when Judge Rueckert assailed the police because they failed to enforce this particular statute in the law. Judge Rueckert was supported in his contention by the probation and truant officers and school teachers. The police then "got busy" and nearly 100 warrants were issued in the course of the following week. No arrests were made, however, as it was felt that no notice should be given to the dealers, who, if they had known of the beginning of the campaign, might have refused to sell cigarettes to the boys employed by the police to secure evidence. The first batch of defendants appeared in the Sixth District court Monday, when three persons were fined $20 and costs each. Wednesday there were 11, Thursday seven and Friday eight. Mrs. Chestner, who was arraigned Saturday, brought the number up to 30. Judge Rueckert, in the juvenile part of the Sixth District court, expressed much gratification over the campaign. There were fewer boys than usual before him, and only one out of a score said that he had smoked cigarettes during the week. Mrs. Felix Hoffmann, who represents the Providence section of the National Council of Jewish women in the juvenile court, told the court that she has begun a personal campaign of her own, and that she has visited many of the Jewish stores during the past two weeks and after explaining the law to the owners received a promise from them never to sell cigarettes to minors again. Truant Officer Gilbert E. Whittemore, Probation Officer William J. Watters and James Minnick, agents for the Providence Society for Organizing Charities, united in saying that the good effects of the police campaign could already be seen.

"Within ten years after the first merchant vessel passes through the Panama canal the additional commerce which will come to the United States will pay for the original cost of this gigantic waterway," declared John Barrett of Washington, director of the International Bureau of the American Republics, in an address before the Commercial Club in Providence Saturday. The banquet was the second held this season by the Commercial Club and ranked in social enjoyment and fine with former club dinners. President J. Edward Studley acted as toastmaster and introduced Mr. Barrett, who was the sole speaker of the evening. Nearly 100 club members and guests were present.

Patrick T. Banigan, a retired woolen merchant of Providence, brother of the late Joseph Banigan, the rubber king, died Sunday afternoon at the family home in that city. Death was not unexpected and came after an illness of creeping paralysis covering a period of five years, during which Mr. Banigan had not left his home. Mr. Banigan was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, about 80 years ago. Most of his life was spent in Providence in the woolen business. He retired from active business more than ten years ago and had lived quietly since. He was a man of retiring habits who loved his home. He was connected with no fraternal organizations or clubs. He is survived by his wife and by three children—Joseph H. Banigan of New York, John B. Banigan and Molly C. Banigan. Mrs. Richard Croker, Jr., of New York, who before her marriage was Miss Mary Brophy, was Mr. Banigan's niece and made her home for many years with her uncle's family.

A penny savings bank for the benefit of the poor will be added to the financial institutions of Providence in the near future. It will be opened under the auspices of St. Joseph's Conference of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, whose officers have had the project under consideration for some time. The new institution will be governed by the rules of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, which has established many of these banks in European countries. Instead of being run in connection with the Postoffice Department, however, as is done in Europe, according to the rules of the society arrangements have been made by the officers of St. Joseph's Conference with two local banks to take charge of the project, which has received the cordial endorsement of Mgr. Thomas F. Doran, pastor of St. Joseph's Church and spiritual director of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

SEVERAL CASES HEARD.

Demurrers to the Declaration in the Bailey Damage Suit.

Grand Jury Retires With Three Known and One Unknown Matter for Consideration.

The superior Court was in session this morning, Judge Brown taking his seat at 11:16. The veteran crier, Judge Tew Isham, made the required proclamations with a vigor and distinctness which "did him proud." There was a good attendance of counsel, including several from Providence, among them Mr. Dubois, Mr. Champlin, who has not been in court here much in recent years; and Messrs. Harvey A. Baker and Hugh B. Baker, former students in Newport schools.

Assistant Attorney General Crozs examined the grand jurors, individually, each standing in his place in the body of the courtroom usually occupied by the grand jury. Every man was found qualified.

Newport's quota included Nathan Hamlin, Michael McAuliffe, John Riley, Charles F. Child, Thomas Egan and Edward Dugan, taxed on personal property, and James A. Betty, Samuel S. Kesson, Richard Muller, John F. Easton (appointed foreman), and Thomas Hall, real estate voters. From Middletown came Stewart Ritchie, a real estate voter; Portsmouth was represented by Mr. Wilcox, a personal property voter; Tiverton by Mr. Rafferty, personal, and Mr. Wilkey, real estate; Little Compton by Mr. Palmer, the youngest man (26) on the panel, and a personal property voter; Jamestown by Mr. Carr, real estate; New Shoreham by Erastus Sprague, real estate.

There were 18 in all, and after being duly engaged and charged they went out at 11:43, under the guidance of Veteran Ronics. There were three known cases, and one unnamed, for consideration.

The attorney general's docket will be in order Tuesday, March 9, at 9:30 A. M.

The cases of Libby vs. Lott Butler vs. Butler, Underwood vs. Old Colony Street Railway Company, Dennis vs. Dennis (two cases), were found ready for hearing.

The case of Amey vs. Johnson was set for trial March 16; Thomas Carr Watson vs. Sarah Briggs, March 17, trial (Mr. Nolan had a physician's certificate that the aged defendant could not come out except in favorable weather.

In Charles Farrow vs. George A. Lancaster, Mr. Morse asked for trial March 15. Mr. Burdick, who had not really appeared in the case, said there was no personal service and the case should be "continued to a day certain." Mr. Morse said the fifteenth and the court made it so, the defendant to answer then. A like entry was made in Same vs. George H. Foster.

The cases of New York Transportation Company vs. Stillman Saunders and same vs. DeBlois went over to June.

Alexander Allen vs. City Steam Laundry Company and National Exchange Bank vs. Newport Compressed Brick Company were set for trial March 18.

Marsh vs. Merchant and Robert M. Fike vs. Annie D. Haines were set for March 15, Mr. Nolan having leave to answer in the latter.

There was a hearing on the demurrer in William T. Libby vs. Frank M. Stott, alias. Mr. Levy appeared for plaintiff. He explained that October 2, 1902, defendant received of plaintiff $500, which was to pay for 2,000 shares of stock of the Lava Beds Mining & Milling Company, with the agreement that if at the end of a year he desired it the money would be returned to him in exchange for the stock. Defendant demurs, because he says this was an agreement to be performed more than a year from the time the agreement was made; and, as it was not in writing and there was no written memorandum of it the statute of frauds provides that it cannot be enforced. In response to this Mr. Levy set up that if one of the parties can complete his part of the contract within the year the law will not apply, and plaintiff had done his part by paying his money. Mr. Levy cited several cases to sustain his position.

Mr. Boss replied, for defendant, that by its terms the agreement required more than a year. Plaintiff had not completed his part of the affair until he tendered the stock, and he could not do that until the year had expired. He cited the case of a man who took a horse for a year. Defendant also denies the alleged agreement and pleads the general issue.

Decision reserved.

Mr. Sullivan presented an unusual case, in which a third party asked for the amendment of a decree in a divorce matter. Annie L. Butler had obtained a legal separation, with allowance for support, from John L. Butler, and also the custody of two children. She is now in the asylum at Howard, insane, and the probate court has appointed Annie E. Butler, their aunt, to be the temporary guardian of the children. She asks the superior court to amend its decree and give her custody of the children. It approved that this decree reads "until otherwise ordered." It also approved that Mr. Sullivan had authority to represent John L. Butler. The court asked for precedent, but none being cited he marked the case "heard in part" and told the lawyer to "look it up." Mr. Harvey appeared in the case and claimed that the court had nothing to hear in this form of proceeding in the matter.

Last but not least came a full hearing in the case of Underwood vs. Old Colony Street Railway Company, the action for damages for running into the buggy of the late William Bailey, he having died as a result. Mr. Morse presented demurrers to the different counts of the declaration and stated interesting points of the law as he saw it, in favor of the company. He claimed that the declaration was insufficient, in that it did not state definitely the place of accident (merely saying along the main road); in that it did not specify the negligence, or tell how the accident happened, or if Mr. Bailey was on the track. He claimed the declaration would have been sufficient if the collision had been that of two carriages, but was not as no one was on a track. He cited a Rhode Island case relating to an accident on a crossing of a steam railroad, and claimed that the present case is similar, as the track is on one side of the road and the cars, under a recent decision, have a practical right of way, with the right to use a high speed in country districts.

Another count in the declaration was Mr. Bailey was driving across the track in plain view, when the car recklessly ran into him, whereas it should have slowed up after seeing him, he being in the exercise of due care. To this Mr. Morse said it is not stated that Mr. Bailey "looked and listened" as the law requires; according to this count the car must have run in "plain view."

The fourth count alleges something entirely different—that the company employed a motorman known to be habitually careless and negligent, who recklessly committed this act. To this Mr. Morse said this count should not go before a jury, as it is dangerous and might "this judgment. It makes no difference to this case whether this allegation were true or not. No damages could be recovered for anything but the actual pecuniary loss to Mr. Bailey's estate, under the laws of Rhode Island. It is not a question as to anything more than what the motorman did on this particular occasion.

A recess to 2:15 was taken.

DEATH OF MRS. CORRIDON.

Mrs. Mary Corridon, widow of John Corridon, died at her home on Van Zandt avenue Sunday, after a painful illness of more than a month, during which she suffered with patient resignation. Mrs. Corridon was one of the older residents of the Second ward, coming here many years ago, and brought up a large family of eight children, four sons and four daughters, all of whom survive. She was a worthy wife of her dead husband, who had a record of 40 years of service with the railroad without losing a day until he left for the last time. During her long and busy life she was ever ready to do what she could to help others.

Mr. Frank J. Corridon, her youngest son, had expected to join the Philadelphia Club before this, but was held here by the serious illness of his mother. The other children are John H., Dennis and William T. Corridon, and the daughters Mrs. Michael Brennan and Misses Julia, Josephine and Catherine Corridon.

ENGAGEMENT OF LIEUTENANT HICKS.

The engagement of Miss Cornelia Baird of Annapolis, Md., to Lieutenant William W. Hicks, coast artillery corps, now stationed at Fort Adams, is announced. Miss Baird comes from an old army family. Her father, Captain William Baird, U. S. A., (retired), was in the Sixth cavalry; her uncle is Brigadier General William A. Carter, now commanding the Department of Luzon, and her grandfather the late Major General Absolom Baird, was for a time inspector general of the army. Lieutenant Hicks is a graduate of the Military Academy in the class of 1908.

—Through the agency of T. J. O'Neill, the loss of fire of Charles H. Sullivan's place of business was settled today for $100.

—The Gray Brothers are making their fishing launch ready for the fyking season. She is the first craft of those wintering at the shipyard to go into commission.

—There was a big exodus of people for Washington Saturday and Sunday night, and still others will probably go tonight. The Naval Reserves left Saturday night, as per schedule.

This is one in the series which the club has considered during the winter and promises to be as interesting as any which have preceded it.

—Saturday afternoon a large invoice of camp cots arrived by express for the emergency camp at the Training Station. The latest case of scarlet fever was reported Thursday, and present indications are that the quarantine will end a week from Thursday. Should a new case appear, of course this date will be further extended.

—There are signs about Washington square today that men are looking for work. It looks as though there were plenty in town to do anything which may be ready to do, but apparently there is as yet little doing. It is a trifle early for spring work to begin, but the weather is so fine that it seems like wasting time to let those good days go by.

—Chief Commissary Julius Reutemann of the Training Station received a letter this morning from lawyers administering his uncle's estate, saying that he has fallen heir to nearly $50,000, which will be subject to his order shortly. Naturally the chief is in a happy frame of mind, but it is not his purpose to quit the naval service. He proposes to serve out his present enlistment, at least.

—Work is being pushed on the two steel bottom floats for the Government Landing. They are still on the ways at the shipyard, but are nearly ready for decking. While these floats were supposed to be all ready to set up, there has been a good deal of work done on them here, and it is a question if the woodwork could not have been more cheaply done at the yard and fitted properly once for all.

—It looked early Sunday morning like a snowstorm, but the snow became discouraged and ceased after only a little had fallen. Then it threatened to grow chilly and the wind was looking at the northeast, but the sun came out in the afternoon and it was pleasant enough for many to take in the country roads, where, in spots, green grass could be seen. It is clear, but a trifle cold today, for March came in like a lamb.

—The funeral of Mrs. Ann Garrick, mother of Patrick and William Garrick and sister of Mrs. William Fallon, took place this morning at St. Mary's Church, with a mass of requiem. Mrs. Garrick had been ill for a number of years, but her death was quite unexpected. The bearers were Thomas Fallon, a nephew; Charles Crug, Patrick Shannon, William Cooney, William Fallon and Thomas F. Fallon.

COALING THE CRUISERS.

Trial Board Expected Wednesday to Begin Another Long Series of Tests.

There is some business at the coaling station today. The three scout cruisers are there, and today two of them coaled. One at a time they came alongside the dock and the coal was put on board as fast as it could be stored. It could be delivered faster than the ships could handle it on board, with the apparatus of the station. The third will coal tomorrow. They will clean ship and make ready for the trial board, which is expected here Wednesday. Then will begin another series of tests, lasting several weeks, after which will come the long-distance run so much talked about.

Some will think that a great deal of testing is being done with those ships, and there is. It must be remembered that they are three different types, so far as engines are concerned, and as the Navy Department is expected to make a selection of engine type from the work of these ships a great deal of careful testing is necessary, that the good qualities of each engine may be brought out properly.

A barge with 3,500 tons of New River coal is expected at the station today or tomorrow.

NOTHING TO CONCEAL.

Secretary Klaasens Invited Rev. Dr. Porter to Call on His Family, and He Did So.

In connection with the disappearance of Hermanus Klaasens and the many stories which have been in circulation since a bit of history may be of interest. Some time since Rev. Dr. Porter was about to leave for a trip abroad, and hearing of it, Mr. Klaasens, who was negotiating a real estate sale at the time, asked Dr. Porter if he was going to Holland or Amsterdam, and found that he was. Mr. Klaasens said he was born in Amsterdam and his parents lived there, and he gave their address in case Dr. Porter was able to call. The latter was able to call on them and they were glad to see some one who had recently seen their son and could tell about him. His father and sister were able to talk English well, but the mother, who was most pleased at the news of her son, was not. In the course of conversation Mr. Porter stated that Mr. Klaasens was thinking of marrying here and the family inquired about their prospective daughter-in-law in the old-fashioned way, taking a good deal of interest in who and what she was.

The fact that Mr. Klaasens asked Rev. Dr. Porter to call on his family if he could showed there was nothing in his past family affairs which he was afraid to have learned by a Newporter, and the fact that his proposed marriage was mentioned and was received as it was by his family showed that he had not been married on the other side.

PROBATE COURT.

In the probate court this morning the will of Henry Fox was proved and letters testamentary thereon were granted to Jane Vayro. Letters of administration on the estate of Maly Melrowitz, alias Malla Melrowitz, were granted to Meyer Kravetz and on the estate of Catherine Rainey to Anthony Gallegher. Letters of administration de bonis non with the will annexed on the estate of Catherine H. Read were granted to John P. Peckham, Edward L. Spencer was appointed guardian of the person and estate of Ella Augusta Smith. Permission was granted to sell real estate of Alzada Sleeper, and personal estate of Martha King estate. Arthur Griffin was appointed appraiser on the estate of Daniel C. Denham. The inventory of the estate of Mary F. Dewick, was ordered recorded. The third annual account of the temporary guardian of the estate of William B. Dennis was allowed.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Some time between the midnight trip of the Ferryboat Beaver Tail Saturday and the first trip Sunday morning, the office on the boat was forced and a cash box containing about $75 was stolen. Of this amount about $20 was in checks. In the hurry other money was left behind. Yesterday afternoon the cash box with the checks still in it was found in the vacant lot on the north side of Narragansett avenue opposite the foot of Greene lane. The break was discovered by the assistant purser, who was on duty Sunday, and the matter was reported to the police, who are investigating.

Mr. Harry Weaver of Newport was in town yesterday.

Mr. P. J. Murphy of Newport was on the Island today.

Preparations are being made to start work on the new barracks to be built at Fort Greble.

The trawl fishermen made one of the best catches of cod for the winter this morning.

So fine has been the weather for the past few days that nearly all of the farmers are getting ready to plow.

After having served over nine years as freight agent for the Ferry Company, Mr. W. C. Watson has resigned and Mr. W. B. Gill has been engaged to fill the vacancy.

Messrs. Clifford Wright and William Williams have left for Washington to witness the inauguration.

AN AUTOMOBILE-MOTORCYCLE COLLISION.

This afternoon there was quite a serious accident on Bellevue avenue, near Beach street, caused by a collision between Mr. DeLancey Kane's automobile, operated by Mr. Morgan, and a motorcycle on which Henry Lloyd Rooney, son of Henry F. Rooney, was riding. The two vehicles approached the corner, each unseen by the others, and came together when there was not time to turn of the way. Mr. Rooney was thrown by the force of the collision and received a cut on his nose and had his knee injured.

FELL FROM A FLOAT.

Little Daughter of Robert Baldrain Drowned at the Shipyard Sunday Afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baldram lost their two-year-old daughter, Josephine, under distressing circumstances, Sunday afternoon. The little one, accompanied by another daughter, aged about six, went down into the shipyard and on one of the floats, whence Josephine fell into the water. The cries of the other child brought other children to the spot, and their combined cries attracted the attention of boys who were playing handball not far away. The handball game at once abandoned and the lads rushed to the scene. One of them, Francis Shea, saw the little one in the slip between the shipyard and the Ann Street pier, and at once jumped overboard and soon had the child, who was on top of the water. All was ready to do what could be done and some of the water was rolled out before the child was taken to the home of her parents, close by, at 249 Thames street. A doctor was called, but arrived too late to be of assistance, as the girl was dead when he reached the house.

No man was on the pier or at the shipyard, though a number had been in the yard, looking over the harbor, until a short while before the children came in. Those who were there when the little one was brought ashore did everything they could to resuscitate her and it is said that she was alive, or seemed to be, when she reached the raft.

It is stated that the dog belonging to the family went to the Davis bakery, where the father is employed and howled until news was sent to the father of the accident.

Under ordinary conditions at any time during daylight hours there is some one at the shipyard, who could have an eye out for such young children and keep them away from danger. These two little ones, however, went into the yard when no one was there. It might be that, even if men had been there at the time, their efforts at resuscitation would have been no more successful than was that of those who tried their best to bring the little one back to life.

Horrer Davenport Injured in Taxicab Crash.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Homer Davenport, the cartoonist, was in a taxicab crash in Central Park early this morning, but received only a gash on the forehead and a severe shaking up, and it was ascertained at his hotel after the accident that his injuries were comparatively slight.

THE COURT VACANCY.

Judge C. M. Lee Still In the Lead for Mumford's Place.

Either an Adjourned or a Special Legislative Session Probable to Codify the Laws.

(Providence correspondence of the News.)

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 27.—The most interesting matter which came before the legislature this week was the resignation of Judge Charles C. Mumford of the superior court, to take effect next Monday. This was expected, of course, because Judge Mumford announced a few weeks ago his intention of leaving the bench in order to resume the practice of law, but the definite naming of the date revived the interest in the matter, and especially in the talk regarding a successor. In view of the fact that next week practically all the Republican party leaders will be in Washington for the inauguration of President-elect Taft but little business will be done by the legislature, and nothing so important as the election of a judge of the superior court will be attempted. When the party returns from the capital a week from today, as will be in readiness for the election and a grand committee meeting will be called for the purpose of filling the vacancy.

The candidates are still as they have been for some time, with Judge Christopher M. Lee of the Sixth District court, and formerly of Newport, as the leader in the race, and John W. Sweeney next. John S. Murdock is hardly reckoned as a factor, because it is not believed that he cares for the place, though it is intimated that he could have it if he wished. Attorney General Greenough is not talked of much now and the other men who have been named are far behind in the running. If Judge Lee is promoted to the Superior Court bench a successor will need to be chosen for the district court judgeship, and Judge Gorham is slated for that position, while Judge Wright of the police court of Providence will secure Judge Gorham's present place. This will mean a considerable shifting of men and will make an interesting series of elections if the plans are carried out as now seems probable and will maintain the interest well for a few days at least that week.

There is a probability of either an adjourned or a special session of the legislature. This is not because there is such an abundance of business that it cannot be done before the regular time for closing, but because it is desired that all legislation which is passed by this General Assembly shall be incorporated in the revised statutes which have been in preparation by a commission for several years. To do this it will be necessary that, after the business has been practically completed, there shall be an interval, in order that the commission may bring its work up to date, report to that effect and have its work accepted by the legislature and the revised statutes incorporated in the law of the state. It makes little difference whether this short session is an adjourned or a special one, as what it does must of necessity be but a formality, since no real business can be transacted and go into the revision of the laws as is desired.

General Treasurer Read sold this week the state bonds authorized for highway and state institutions purposes and secured a rather small home, receiving but $5,625 on an issue of $900,000. The low premium is accounted for by the dullness of the times and the fact that it is known that the state is short of funds and needs an increased revenue. The bonds were bought in a lump by a New York banker, who at the figure paid will undoubtedly make a good profit. The price at which he secured them was five-eighths of one per cent over $100. Under the existing conditions General Treasurer Read says he is well satisfied with the sale, but the proceeds are not nearly as good as those received from the last previous bond issue.

Another pardon was granted by the governor, with the consent of the senate, this week, to Thomas Gray, who was serving a ten-year sentence and was convicted on circumstantial evidence only. If the governor continues his pardoning practices he will be in danger of breaking the record in this exercise of executive clemency.

The senate took somewhat exceptional action early in the week by the passage of a resolution expressing sympathy with Senator Sanborn of Newport in his sickness. Such action is rare, if not unprecedented, and is regarded as a signal compliment for the Newport senator. The interest in his condition is keen and general and his colleagues from Newport are questioned eagerly every day when they come up from the south end of the state.

The 54-hour bill for women and children is still with the house committee on labor and that committee intends to visit a number of manufacturing plants in order to see the conditions at those places of employment. That the bill will be passed, however, is regarded as very doubtful, inasmuch as it is known that Republican campaign supporters who are mill owners are disturbed over the matter. In the meantime, besides visiting some of the large plants in this city and vicinity, the committee will probably give a hearing to these manufacturers, in order that ground may be given for the defeat of the bill which it is understood has been decided upon.

A measure of wide interest introduced during the week would take away from the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts the mechanical department and make it a part of some school in this city or vicinity, in order that it may be located where it would be available to more of those who desire to use its facilities. What effect such action would have upon the college, which would thus be shorn of a good portion of its city, is hardly to be foreseen, but it would seem although it was practically impossible for it to be otherwise than disastrous. The progress of the bill will be watched with widespread interest.

The new militia law has been reported by the commission, which has long been at work upon it. The most important feature is the provision which would legislate out of existence the independent military companies of the state. To this clause in the report General Brayton has announced his opposition, and without his endorsement it is hardly likely that it will be passed.

Some of the important and interesting bills introduced during the week are to punish tramps who steal rides on trains, to discourage the practice of chauffeurs using the automobiles of their owners without consent, two for the protection of mechanics' liens, one for the inspection of bakeries and ice cream factories, that they may be kept clean and wholesome, one for the improvement of Point Judith pond and one to permit the town of Warwick to issue all its debts. These were all referred to appropriate committees and will come up for consideration in due course of time.

There is another interesting war between factions at Block Island, over the sale of the steamboats. A hearing was held this week, at which a most headway was made. It is evident that when another is held it will be an even more lively occasion than this preliminary one, which was really only a skirmish in preparation for real warfare later.

Colonel George H. Webb, whose term as commissioner of industrial statistics expired in January, and who was re-appointed, failed to qualify. Consequently it has been decided that his tenure of office lapsed and this week he was re-elected to the place. In the meantime it is stated that his non-appointed for a month for himself and his clerks, unless a special resolution is passed by the legislature providing for the payment of the salary bills of the department for the month of February. That this will be done is a foregone conclusion.

When the legislature convenes next Tuesday the state will be without any general officers within its borders and the senate will need to elect a president. There is to be a general exodus of state officials to Washington for the inauguration proceedings and this action must be taken for the continuance of the sessions of the General Assembly. It looks now as though Senator Wilbour of Little Compton would secure the honor, though Senator Sanborn would have received it if he had not been too ill to attend.

The latest development in connection with the seating of Congressman-elect Sheffield to succeed the late Congressman Granger is that the legal representatives of the late Mr. Granger will not press the charges of unfair and incorrect count, but the Democrats in the national House of Representatives may do something to make a contest if there is any basis for one.

AMERICAN HOUSES IN ITALY.

Shelters for Earthquake Survivors are Progressing Favorably.

MESSINA, Sicily, March 1.—The work of constructing wooden houses with material sent out from the United States or purchased with American money to shelter the earthquake survivors is progressing favorably, under the direction of Lieutenant Commander Reginald R. Belknap, American naval attache at Berlin and Rome. The lack of carts and horses has made the transportation of lumber from the dock to the point of erection both slow and expensive. It has been decided to build 1,000 houses at Messina, 1,000 at Reggio and 100 at the settlement called Regina Elena, the village three miles from here being constructed under the personal direction of Queen Helena.

FOR CALABRIAN DISTRICT.

Mayor of Rome Sends $1,000 to American Relief Committee.

ROME, March 1.—The American committee for the relief of the earthquake sufferers has received $1,000 from Signor Nathan, mayor of Rome, to be expended in relief in the Calabrian district. This donation is a distinct compliment to the efficiency of the American organization. The mayor says that more money will be forthcoming if it is needed.

—Mrs. Mary Carter, who died at the Newport Hospital Sunday, had many friends in Newport. Although helpless for more than 20 years, she was always cheerful and her friends in Trinity Church and the Sunshine Society gained as much enjoyment from their calls on her as she did herself. Four weeks ago she was removed from her home on Mill street to the hospital.

COMMODORE JAMES'S PLANS.

that Monday, August 9, the King's Cup will be sailed for over one of the old courses, from Brenton's Reef Lightship.

Tuesday, August 10, the run to Vineyard Haven will take place.

Wednesday, August 11, the squadron run will be from East Chop, Vineyard Haven, to Portland, Me., a distance of 160½ nautical miles and will be a chance for everybody. Thursday, August 12, the Owl and Game Cock Colors will be rowed for and such motor boat races as may be arranged will be held in the harbor of Portland, under the direction of Fleet Captain Franklin A. Plummer. Friday, August 13, the run will be to Bar Harbor, and Saturday, August 14, the squadron will disband.

Thus the leaders are taking, and to safeguard the racing yachts and to render immediate assistance to any vessel that may meet with an accident, it has been suggested that the steam yacht fleet on the long run, Vineyard Haven to Portland, be so divided as to keep each and every yacht in view. It's a fine program and there is no reason why it cannot be carried out in the most satisfactory manner.

Increase of traffic in the lower bay, together with the fluky winds and strong tides encountered there, caused the club to abandon the old Sandy Hook lightship course some years ago, for the triangular courses on Long Island Sound off Glen Cove. Now they have practically abandoned the Glen Cove courses. Speaking of the tentative schedule announced, a member of the club who is a racing man said Saturday night: "This step has not been taken hastily. It is the result of much serious consideration on the part of yacht owners, who believe that such races as proposed will bring out a larger and more varied class of yachts. They will have plenty of open water on the long race to Newport, and it will give them a splendid opportunity to test the new handicap rule, which was adopted last year, but never tried out. Another good point is that the club's yachts that take part in the annual regatta of the Larchmont Yacht Club, July 4, will be all ready to start in our race July 7, and they will have time after racing off Newport and back to Glen Cove, to take part in the Larchmont race week."

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

EVERY PHASE OF QUESTION TREATED.

Congress February 20, 1907, were presented to Congress today through the publication of a preliminary report by the commission. This report deals with practically every phase of the immigration question, including Oriental aliens and other excluded classes, peonage, charity among immigrants, white slave traffic, conditions of steerage, anthropology congestion in large cities, alien criminality, competition of immigrants, school inquiries, administration of the immigration laws, distribution of immigrants and other questions.

No conclusions have been reported by the commission, but the scope of the work is shown in a manner which presages extensive legislation in the future. It is stated that if the plans of the commission are realized the various lines of work outside Washington will be completed in the early fall—probably by September 17. The entire investigation will probably be finished during the next fiscal year. The report was printed and circulated today to show the necessity for an appropriation of $250,000 to carry on and complete the work. Thus far the expenses of the commission from April 1, 1907, to February 27, 1909, have been $344,796. At the present 198 persons are employed under the commission, 82 being in Washington, two in New York, two in San Francisco, 92 engaged in field work and 20 in special lines of inquiry.

The commission says it is generally admitted by persons acquainted with the subject that, notwithstanding the fact that the present law proposes for the exclusion of every undesirable immigrant, thousands of undeniably undesirable persons are admitted each year. It has been found that the law in theory, so far as its exclusion provisions are concerned, is exceptionally strong, but in effect it is, in some respects, weak and in effectual. The commission says it has discovered several sources of this weakness, and it is its purpose to find the others and to recommend effective remedies.

One of the most important features of the work is connected with evasions of the law, resulting in the importation of excluded classes. Notwithstanding the expenditure of about $500,000 annually to enforce this law, the commission finds that it does not prevent the coming of Chinese laborers in considerable numbers.

An extensive investigation is being made into the question of the importation and harboring of women for immoral purposes. The results show that many women are being constantly imported under conditions which amount to absolute slavery. As the result of inquiries and the evidences gathered there has been a noteworthy attack on this business, which has resulted in a very marked decrease since the commission began its work.

It has been found that in numerous instances persons afflicted with contagious diseases, and even criminals of a dangerous type, have been able to evade the immigration laws and come to this country under the pretence of being seamen.

The utmost importance is attached to the inquiry being made into the subject of alien criminality. The higher criminal courts of New York city are, at the request of the commission, keeping records in great detail of each person convicted of crime, and it is intended that a study of foreign-born criminals and criminals of the second generation will be made in that city. The investigation, however, is not confined to the larger cities, but is being carried into smaller centres and industrial communities in various parts of the country.

The most extensive and important work undertaken by the commission is the general field investigation into the economic and social status of immigrants in various sections of the country. The most important topic being covered is the race of employes in each occupation, years each race has been employed, hours of work and discrimination for or against immigrants in employment, wages and housing.

In taking up the congestion of immigrants in large cities the commission is observing communities inhabited principally by members of one race, as to whether the clinging together of members of the same race handicaps them in their struggle for advancement and prevents their rapid assimilation and Americanization.

A careful inquiry among wage earners who are forced to compete with immigrant labor is being made among workers in the trades and occupations in which immigrants are largely engaged.

A special field investigation is being conducted in selected localities in the South, and it will cover the sentiment of legislative bodies as indicated by legislation enacted affecting immigration. Inducements and obstacles to immigration, such as climate, character of soil, free or cheap land, amount, variety and regularity of work throughout the year, wages paid and hours of employment, will be shown. Information is being gathered, also, concerning the employment of women and children, the prejudice against races, the presence or scarcity of fellow-countrymen and church and school facilities, as well as a vast amount of other information.

The investigation of Oriental immigration has been confined thus far to the Rocky mountain and Pacific coast sections, and special emphasis has been placed on the inquiry concerning the Japanese. Without the census recently ordered in California, the agents of the commission claim they have fairly accurate information concerning the numbers of Japanese in California, their distribution by counties and industrial districts, their occupations and trades. In California and Washington the report when made, will cover the presence of Japanese, Chinese and Hindus.

The school is declared by the commission to be the most potent influence in promoting the assimilation and Americanization of the immigrant.

Treatment accorded steerage passengers at sea has been given especial consideration, and the agents of the commission in many instances have come from foreign ports in the guise of immigrants. It was found that the steerage of today is far better in many ways than in the past, but that there is still great room for improvement.

The commission expects to be able to report at an early date the effect of inter-marriage between the native-born and the immigrant, and with one another, to determine whether a deleterious influence results, or whether beneficial influences will not be felt.

Peonage is being made the subject of a special inquiry.

One of the most interesting subjects is an investigation being conducted in nearly 100 cities to show to what extent the immigrant is the recipient of charity.

PREVIOUS EFFORTS ECLIPSED.

Decorations Unsurpassed and Record Breaking Inauguration Crowd.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Preparations for the induction of William H. Taft into the Presidency are complete, and the various committees make the prophecy that the ceremonies of the day will be more brilliant and picturesque than those of any previous inaugural event. Prediction is made, also, that the crowd of visitors who will come from every nook and corner of the United States will be a record-breaker.

The work on the great Court of Honor, one of the most beautiful features of the inauguration, received its finishing touch today, and this focal point of the national function produces a color and decorative scheme which is said to eclipse all previous efforts in this direction. The task of getting the pension office in readiness for the inauguration ball will be finished tomorrow. The ornamentation which will attend this brilliant social event will be unsurpassed, the committee having spent $20,000 for decorations alone.

The large crowds which have already arrived were augmented today by many more thousands, reaching the city on every incoming train. There was also an influx of many organizations from different states.

The first member of President-elect Taft's cabinet to arrive here was Charles Nagel of St. Louis, who, it is expected, will become Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor. Mr. Nagel called on Mr. Taft during the day, to pay his respects.

Company B, First regiment of the Minnesota National Guard, 107 strong, was the first military organization to reach here to participate in the inauguration. Others were the coast artillery corps of Massachusetts and the New and Then Club of Salem, Mass.

Revenue Cutter's Repairs to Cost Approximately $11,000.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Comparatively slight damage was sustained by revenue cutter Mohawk through her grounding on the rocks at the entrance to Hell Gate last week. Government officials examined her today in dry dock, and under instructions from Washington contracted with the owners of the private yard where she had been docked to repair her at an expense of approximately $11,000.

CHALLENGES FOR DAVIS CUP.

President Dwight Cables Australia on Chance of Sending Team.

NEW YORK, March 1.—President James Dwight of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association today cabled a challenge for the Dwight E. Davis International cup to Secretary Hicks of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, the present holders of the trophy. The cablegram read: "Challenge, on chance of sending team."

By sending the American challenge on or before March 1, which the rules governing the Davis trophy require, the United States association retains its right to send a team to Australia next November, when the international matches will be played there. It is expected that an American team will be sent, picked from the best players as determined at the end of the tennis season here.

Norman E. Brooks and A. F. Wilding successfully defended the Davis cup for the Australian association last year, against Beals C. Wright and Frederick B. Alexander.

DILLON'S RUN AT YONKERS.

The Yonkers Herald of Saturday has the following on the annual games of the Mercury Athletic Club, held Friday evening: "Jimmy Lee won the mile, but was pushed hard by young McCarthy of the St. Peter's Club. H. M. Dillon, the new Mercury boy, made his debut late night but the best he could do was to get a close third in the mile. He ran a nice race and has the ear marks of a good boy."

These remarks from M. P. Driscoll, an impartial observer, show that Dillon must have made a good showing. Dillon writes that the slippery floor caused him to fall and he strained his ankle but still was able to finish third. His injury was such that the doctor told him not to go into the five-mile race, which was the one on which he had his mind fixed. He made such a good showing that he was taken in by the Mercury Club and will be heard from later in some of the distance running. He joined the Reserves at New York yesterday and went on the trip to Washington.

To save is absolutely the onl yway to secure a solid fortune. There is no other mode. Every man of means is on record as saying that those who close their eyes and ears to these plain facts will be forever poor and have none but themselves to blame for the rejection of this truth. "Fortune is for those who by diligence, honesty and frugality place themselves in position to grasp hold of fortune when it appears in view—the best evidence of frugality is the $300 or more standing in your name in a savings bank." POPE MUCH BETTER.

Transacts Business with Papal Secretary of State Merry del Val.

ROME, March 1.—The condition of the Pope, who has been suffering from a cold lately, is much better today. He is still somewhat hoarse, and, while he is not obliged to remain in bed, Doctors Palucci and Marchiafava, who visited him today, insisted that he shall not yet resume his audiences. He was permitted, however, to receive the Papal secretary of state, Merry del Val, with whom he transacted business. The temperature of the patient is normal.

LEAGUE'S TOPICS THE PAST MONTH.

By the various divisions of the League of Good Citizenship during the past month the British occupation of Newport and the Battle of Rhode Island were taken up. In 1778 the Americans made an alliance with France and were very hopeful, the French arriving July 29, 1778, with 16 vessels under the command of Count D'Estaing. The subsequent departure of the French fleet which refused to fight, Lafayette's famous but unsuccessful seven-hour ride to Boston for the purpose of inducing the fleet to return, the Battle of Rhode Island, August 29, 1778, at "Bloody Brook," and the departure of the British from Newport October 25, 1779, were among the points discussed.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

No evening meeting was held at the Berkeley parish house Sunday and these services are to be replaced by Sunday evening meetings at various cottages for the present.

The men of the Methodist Episcopal church are making extensive preparations for their annual turkey supper, which is always a prominent feature of the year.

Rev. Arthur N. Peaslee of St. George's School was the preacher at St. Mary's Sunday morning.

The First Beach Land Company has sold lots 453 and 454 on the westerly side of Ellery avenue, with a combined frontage of 150 feet and containing 18,750 square feet, to D. Arthur Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben W. Peckham entertained the Ronkonkoma Dramatic club and its friends Saturday evening at their home on Indian avenue. In the early evening progressive whist was played, there being five tables. Mrs. Robert E. Grinnell won the woman's prize, a lace doily, and the men's prize, a leather card case, was awarded to Miss Edith M. Peckham. Informal dancing concluded an enjoyable evening. Mrs. C. Edward Farnum and Miss Ardelia Peckham assisted in the inside. Fruit punch and crackers were served.

According to the rings about the old tree recently cut down in the Wilbercee school yard, it is estimated to be about 85 years old. The stump was nearly three feet across and was so gnarled that it was impossible to cut it up and portions of it were blasted. The tree had become partially decayed through its centre, and was considered unsafe.

A masquerade is contemplated as one of the Easter social events at the Berkeley parish house.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, March 1, Wall Street—The stock market opened irregular, with Amalgamated Copper at 68⅝, American Smelting 80⅝, Anaconda 40⅞, Atchison 102¾, Baltimore & Ohio 106¾, Brooklyn Transit 71⅞, Canadian Pacific 168⅝ ex. div., Chesapeake & Ohio 61⅞, Erie 27⅝, Great Northern preferred 130⅝, Louisville & Nashville 130, Missouri, Kansas & Texas 39, Norfolk 86⅝, Northern Pacific 137¾, Reading 124⅜, Rock Island 25⅝, Southern Pacific 117¾, Southern Railway 24⅝, Union Pacific 171¾ ex. div., United States Steel 44⅜ to 45 and United States Steel preferred 110¼.

10—Most prices of stocks showed a majority of gains, but there was a mixture of losses, including a number of the active speculative leaders. Southern Pacific preferred and Amalgamated Copper rose 1, and Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, the Wisconsin Central stocks and Brooklyn Transit large fractions. Norfolk & Western declined ⅝. Dealings were only in moderate volume.

11—When prices began to show a yielding tendency large orders for Reading poured into the market and the list stiffened. Reading was rushed up 1⅝ to 124⅝. Covering of shorts put out in anticipation of a Supreme Court decision today on the commodity clause was a factor. Some of the minor stocks showed more activity than of late, especially the Wisconsin Central stocks. United States Leather preferred advanced 2⅝. Lake Erie & Western preferred and Republic Steel preferred 2¾, Wisconsin Central 2, and several other prominent stocks rose from 1 to 1⅝. Prices reacted a fraction at the end of the hour.

Noon—Money on call, steady, at 2 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3½ to 4 per cent. A new spurt in Reading carried it up 5 points, and there was active buying, with advancing prices all around the room. Prices fell back again slightly at noon. Bonds were firm.

MRS. JOHN CARTER BROWN.

Death of an Aged and Pioneer Summer Resident of Newport.

Her Husband a Member of a Distinguished Family and Her Children Well Known Here.

Mrs. Sophia Augusta Brown, widow of John Carter Brown, died Sunday afternoon at her residence on Bellevue avenue, after an illness of four years which followed a stroke of paralysis. During these years Mrs. Brown rallied occasionally, but had been practically helpless during the entire period. Two of the winters were spent in Newport and two in Providence, the patient having been carried in an invalid's chair from her bedroom to an elevator specially built for this purpose, and thence on a private ambulance to the steamboat on which she was taken to Providence. After her return from Providence nearly a year ago she was driven out in a closed carriage a few times, but during the past few months had been confined to her room.

She had a serious ill turn last Tuesday and since had been steadily failing, having since Friday been slowly passing away. At her bedside when death came were her daughter, Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, who with Mr. Sherman came from New York Saturday night by automobile; her two daughters-in-law, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown and Mrs. Harold Brown, Rev. Emery H. Porter, D. D., of Emmanuel Church and Drs. Ecroyd of this city and Day of Providence.

Mrs. Brown was one of the pioneer summer residents of Newport, having been prominent in social circles nearly half a century ago. After her husband's death in 1874 she made Providence her home, coming to Newport only in the summer, but about ten years ago made Newport her permanent residence, spending the greater part of each year in her Bellevue Avenue home and going to Providence for only a short time. She was much interested in Newport and gave liberally of her wealth for church and charitable purposes. Especially interested in Emmanuel Church, when the new church was built by Mrs. John Nicholas Brown in memory of her husband, Mrs. John Carter Brown placed a handsome window in the chancel as a memorial to her two sons, and later gave the chime of bells. In addition she was a constant contributor to the support of the church. Her private benevolences were numerous and widely scattered throughout the city.

Mrs. Brown was a daughter of Patrick Browne of New Providence, in the Bahamas, where Mr. Brown met her during his extensive travels. Her father was an English subject, but her mother and maternal ancestors were members of a Rhode Island family. She was married to Mr. Brown in May, 1839, and made her home in Providence until her husband's death. Of this union three children were born, John Nicholas, Harold and Sophia Augusta. John Nicholas married Natalie Bayard Dresser, daughter of the late George W. Dresser, and Harold married Georgette, daughter of William Watts and Annie Wetmore Sherman, her mother being a sister of Senator George Peabody Wetmore. Mrs. Brown's daughter became the second wife of Mr. W. Watts Sherman. The two sons, about nine years ago, died within ten days of each other, in New York, John Nicholas dying while his brother was hastening across the Atlantic, summoned by news of his serious illness, and Harold a few days after reaching New York. John Nicholas Brown, son of the late John Nicholas and Natalie Bayard Dresser Brown, is the only male descendant of the family surviving.

Mrs. Brown's husband was the second son of Nicholas and Ann (Carter) Brown. This Nicholas Brown was the member of the Brown family whose gifts to Brown University gave the institution its name. He was the most eminent of the members of the successive generations of the Browns who were descended from Chad Brown of the Mayflower passengers. John Carter Brown was named after his mother's father, John Carter, a prominent merchant of Providence.

John Carter Brown was born in Providence August 8, 1797, graduated at Brown University in the class of 1816 and in 1822 became a member of the firm of Brown & Ives, of which his father was then the head. In 1828 he was elected a trustee of Brown University, and in 1842 a fellow, retaining this office until his death.

Throughout his life he was a great traveller, and both before and after his admission to the firm of Brown & Ives spent years in Europe. At length he conceived the idea of collecting American books and writings, and in the pursuit of this material visited Spain, the West Indies and Mexico on more than one occasion. His father died in 1841 and left him large resources, which he liberally bestowed upon his task of collection. It was thus that the John Carter Brown Library took its beginning. It was while in quest of historical documents at New Providence that Mr. Brown met his future wife.

John Carter Brown continued the gifts of his father to Brown University, the present library of the college being his gift. He also afforded of his means to Butler Hospital, and especially to the Rhode Island Hospital. His collection of Rhode Island and Colonial books, one of the most complete in the world, was given by John Carter Brown to John Nicholas Brown and by the latter to Brown University, forming the John Carter Brown Memorial Library, which is housed in a special building on the college grounds. Both John Nicholas Brown and Harold Brown are officially to the university, as well as to Newport institutions.

Mrs. Brown was possessed of large wealth, owning much in her own right and having the use of the income from the bulk of her husband's estate which was left in trust.

Schooner Eugene Castle Floated.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. March 1—Schooner Eugene Castle went ashore at Two Mile beach yesterday, but was floated early today. The schooner was towed in to Newton Dock by Capt. Max Elliot, felt she could be the oak round which the tender vines of genius might twine and gain power. Chopin's physical strength needed special care. Together they sojourned at Majorca.

On first seeing her portrait Chopin declared that it repelled him. Such were her powers or arts within a few weeks they spent two years together in their new Eden. He wrote: "I am among palms, cedars, cactuses, aloes, olive, orange, lemon and pomegranate trees. The sky is like a turquoise, the sea is like a lazuli, and the mountains are like emeralds. The air? The air is just as in heaven."

The trail of the serpent was there none the less. Their first house experiments were dismal failures. For the winter they took a ruined monastery, deserted by the odor of sanctity, haunted by musty damps, by owls and bats, and Chopin shiveringly swore there were ghosts. The masculine mind ed madame had to condescend to cook, as each meal made him ill. Paradise was getting lost. The lady writes: "The poor, great artist was a detestable patient. He became completely demoralized. He bore pain bravely, but his mind was upset, and his imagination too. He saw phantoms." Also a few realities. The malarious life brought him near death.

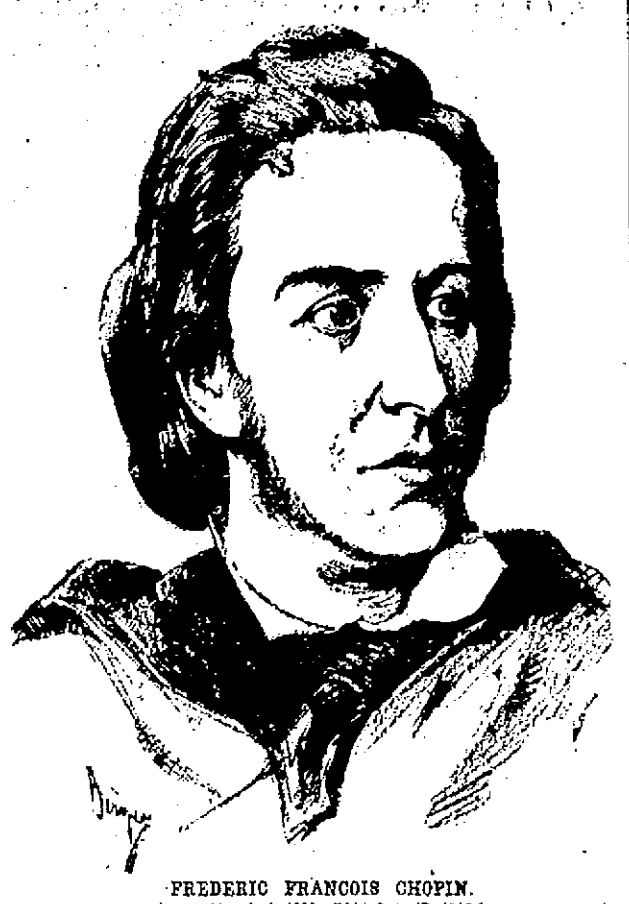

They returned to France in 1839. He was not much happier for it. He composed many pieces, and in them all is the wail of a heart aching for a blessed peace that never comes. "He took to heart," she tells us, "his exclusion from our family life," for she had let him have part of her house as his little kingdom.

On these broken lines ran his life till 1847, some eight years of relationship unendurable to any man of fibre and stout heart. He said to some that the flame was an angel, but her wings sometimes hurt him. When he was so far oblivious to his serfdom as to attempt a show of paternal authority in the matter of her daughter's choice of a husband, George Sand jumped at the good opportunity to end a friendship that had sunk into a tragical farce.

Chopin tried change of surroundings in England. He was lionized in London, but saw no sunshine for a week, then went back to his beloved Paris, this time under the loving care of his chief pupil and friend Gutman, where not consumption only, but silent heartbreak, undermined body and spirit. George Sand called, being the polite thing for so true a Frenchwoman to do, but Gutman took a leaf out of her book and "excluded her from their family life," the pair of faithful friends. Chopin's last words were, "She told me I would die in no arms but hers."

Liszt wrote the life of his friend, whose genius he adored, himself a marvelous pianist, as lovers of his all but impossible Hungarian rhapsodies know. He tells how Chopin grew worse each year after 1840. In his last two years he did scarcely any walking, going upstairs choked him. The blow that killed him was his being cast off by the woman who survived him nearly 30 years. Liszt viewed him as "one more great and illustrious victim to those transitory attachments formed between persons of differing characters who mistake for a durable feeling the surprise and delight felt at the first meeting and build on it hopes and illusions fated never to be realized, and it is always that nature which is most deeply stirred which is the most absolute in its hopes and attachments. For such as these any transplantation is a thing impossible; that is destroyed and forever ruined by the bitter awakening from the all absorbing dream."

So poor Chopin uttered his soul in his converse with his well-loved instrument. He got even with his woes in poetical furies and buried them, though they never really died, in those sublimely melancholy chords that eased his mind in the writing. His fame, his power, are growing every new year, and the influences of his genius who can measure?

FIRST FOR ST. MARY'S.

Win the Opening Match in Series With the Y. M. C. A..

St. George's Beat Rare Old Birds and Hiltons Defeat the School's Second Team.

The St. Mary's and Young Men's Christian Association basketball teams played a match at the gymnasium Saturday evening, St. Mary's winning by a score of 37 to 22. The game was one of the fastest played this year at the Association and was not intentionally rough, although the fast work was the occasion of several fouls. It was a contest where no player shone particularly strong, each doing his share of the work. Duggan and Kenney scored 11 of the 15 goals for St. Mary's and West and J. Sullivan did the best work for the Association team.

The game was the first in five for the junior championship of the city and the fact that the St. Mary's beat the Y. M. C. A. on the latter's floor encourages the former to believe that they will win the championship, but the Association boys feel certain that they can overcome this defeat and win out finally. The line-up was as follows:

St. Mary's.	Y. M. C. A.
Martin l. f.	r. b., W. Sullivan
Duggan, r. f.	l. b., Edwards
Fitzsimmons, c.	c., Underwood
Kenney, l. b.	r. f., West
Kirwin, Burns, r. b.	l. f., J. Sullivan

Score—St. Mary's 37, Y. M. C. A. 22. Goals from floor—Martin 1, Duggan 6, Fitzsimmons 3, Kenney 5, Burns 3; Edwards 2, Underwood 1, West 4, J. Sullivan 3. Goals from fouls—Kenney 1, West 2. Referee—Waters.

Saturday evening the Rare Old Birds' basket ball team played the St. George's School team at the school, the latter winning by the score of 24-10. The Rare Old Birds were without the services of two of their regular players, Arnold and Brack, and the team was not as strong as it should have been. Harrington, who played in one of the places, put up a fine game.

The rules which the school team followed in the first half seemed to bother the Rare Old Birds as shooting from a dribble was allowed. In this half they piled up 19 points to their opponents 5. In the second it was a different story, as they changed the rules and no shooting from a dribble was allowed. Again in this half the St. George's team came out ahead, this time 5-4. The shooting of St. George's was a little off, they missing 79 field shots while the Rare Old Birds missed 34. Buell in the first half played a fine game, scoring six baskets.

The St. George's team scored six points in the first half in about three minutes. Harry of the Birds then started the scoring for his side and Harrington followed with another basket. A foul was called on the Rare Old Birds, and Buell dropped in the ball. Landreth caged a pretty one from the centre of the floor. Before this half was over Buell made three and Swain one, and K. Anthony one for the Rare Old Birds.

In the second the Rare Old Birds came back strong and outplayed their opponents, but had a little hard luck in the shooting line. St. George's in this half also had many shots, but seemed over-anxious in shooting. The scoring in this half was done by K. Anthony and H. Anthony, each making one for the Rare Old Birds, while Buell made one and Swain one. Buell also scored on a foul. The line-up:

St. George's.	Rare Old Birds.
Buell, r. f.	l. b., H. Anthony
Landreth, l. f.	r. b. k., Anthony
Swain, c.	c., Dwyer
Fenner, l. b.	r. f., Harrington
Wright, r. b.	l. f., Harry

Score—St. George's 24, Rare Old Birds 10. Baskets—Buell 7, Swain 3, Landreth 2, K. Anthony 2, H. Anthony 1, Harrington 1, Harry 1. From Fouls—Buell 2. Missed Foul tries—Buell 4, Dwyer 2, K. Anthony 1. Missed field shots—St. George's 79, Rare Old Birds 51. Referee—Heffernan.

The Hiltons, assisted by Lawton and Shea of St. Mary's, won from the second St. George's team at Middletown, Saturday evening, by the score of 19 to 3. Although outweighed, the Hiltons made a fine showing, playing a faster game in shooting than their opponents. St. George's passed well but were inaccurate in shooting.

The game started with two baskets by Lawton, Langley followed with two and Winslow for St. George's dropped in two before the close of the half, which ended 8 to 4.

The second was productive of more scoring. Sheehan threw a long one for a starter. Shea then scored two, but St. George's crept up by means of goals by Jenckes and Hoskler. This was all they were able to make, while as a result of fouls three points were scored for Hilton and Lawton made his last basket, which was a long shot.

For St. George's, Jenckes and Winslows were the stars and the whole Hilton team played together well, Lawton being the biggest scorer. The Hiltons had much to say in praise of the sportsmanlike conduct shown by the St. George's team, who played a clean game and did not use their superior weight to an unfair advantage. The score for the second half was 11-4. Referee Heffernan gave satisfaction. The line-up:

Hiltons.	St. George's Second.
Sheehan, r. f.	l. b., Jenckes
Shea, l. f.	r. b., Crocker, Deming
Langley, c.	c., Madeira, Crocker
Laughlin, l. b.	r. f., Hoskler
Lawton, r. b.	l. f., Winslow

Score—Hiltons 19, St. George's Second 8. Goals from floor—Lawton 3, Langley 2, Shea 2, Winslow 2, Sheehan, Jenckes, Hoskler. Goals from fouls—Langley 3. Referee—Heffernan. Timer—Howard. Scorers—King and Wheeler. Time—20 and 15-minute halves.

In a clean game, replete with fast passing and good shooting, the Paragons defeated the North Ends, 29-22. The team work of both sides was clever but in this, as in shooting, the Paragons had a shade the better of it. Although not making many baskets, Oxx made phenomenal shots. Dwyer stuck to him so that he had the ball only occasionally. White did accurate shooting, although not of the long order. It was hard to pick a star on the Paragons, as all did good work, especially in blocking. Shea appeared to be everywhere at once, as did Cottrell and Edwards. Marshall passed well and blocked when occasion required. The umpiring was excellent. The line-up:

North Ends	Paragons
Hass, r. f.	l. b., Shea
White, l. f.	r. b., Edwards
Johansson, Marshall, c.	c., Marshall
P. Turner, c. b.	l. f., R. Cottrell
Oxx, l. b.	r. f., Dwyer

Score—Paragons 29, North Ends 22. Goals from floor—Hass 2, Oxx 2, Johansson, White 5, Edwards 5, Cottrell 5, Marshall 2, Shea 5, Dwyer. Goals from fouls—Marshall. Missed foul try—P. Turner. Referee—L. Turner. Scorer—H. Cottrell. Timers—Ellis and H. Shea. Time—Twenty-minute halves.

IN MEMORY OF MR. GRANGER.

Senators Aldrich and Wetmore Speak in Eulogistic Terms of the Late Congressman.

In the United States Senate Saturday resolutions on the death of Congressman Daniel L. D. Granger were passed, after Senators Aldrich and Wetmore had spoken in eulogistic terms of the deceased. The former quoted from the published tributes to Mr. Granger of Bishop McVickar and Colonel R. H. I. Goddard, "one of Rhode Island's leading citizens," and concluded as follows: "These expressions fairly represent the estimate placed upon the character and services of Mr. Granger by those who knew him best and were most closely associated with him in his religious and political life. The judgment of those familiar with his successful public career and his many private virtues enables us to measure the loss sustained by the people of Rhode Island in the death of Mr. Granger."

Senator Wetmore gave an interesting account of Congressman Granger's career, quoting in full the message of Governor Pothier to the General Assembly and having put on the Senate record the resolutions adopted unanimously by the legislature.

BATTLESHIP RHODE ISLAND AT NEW YORK.

New Yorkers had their first glimpse of a portion of the "round the world battleship fet" when battleship Rhode Island and New Jersey steamed majestically into port and anchored off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, where they will stow powder, shot and shell preparatory to going to navy yards for some minor tinkering and to have themselves arrayed in the new service coat of gray.

After discharging ammunition, the Rhode Island will proceed to the Brooklyn navy yard and the New Jersey will go to the Boston navy yard.

Notwithstanding it was Sunday the proud participants in the famous ceremonies were not permitted to enter the harbor without a warm greeting.

Amendments by Senators Aldrich and Wetmore Retained by Senate in River and Harbor Bill.

The river and harbor bill, which passed the Senate Saturday, carries the amendments proposed by Senator Aldrich, providing for a survey of Great Salt pond, Block Island, with a view to obtaining greater depth, and his amendment providing for a survey of Providence harbor, with a view to extending the 25-foot-deep anchorage area westward to the western harbor line from a point just above Harbor Junction pier to Field's Point and cutting off Field's Point back to the harbor line.

These are in addition to the amendments offered by Senator Wetmore for surveys for improvements to Newport harbor and plans for a landing place in Point Judith harbor.
